Hi Hashem. Thanks for all the work you did on my website. It looks much better than my first version.

I'm asking here for some adjustments, this email only for:
<https://3ts-inc.pages.dev/>

Landing page

1. Contrast between the 3 cups logo (white) - and the background - needs equalizing - i'm attaching the PNG file for the logo in a few different formats, including a transparent background.

2. Let's change the tagline throughout: from "Building a world where collaboration and cooperation..."
 TO: Considered collaboration. Consequential change.

Where appropriate add in this description, similar to the way you presented a my quote in other places
"A better world starts with intention and is built through better decisions — made by the right people, with honest information, in rooms designed for clarity rather than comfort. I work with senior leaders, institutions, and communities to make those decisions possible: aligning stakeholders, strengthening sponsors, and creating the conditions for change that holds."

3. I don't like the boardroom image. Feel free to give me a few other possibilities all in the concept of " Considered collaboration. Consequential change. "

4. Love the summary under "get started" but let's make it:
 Coaching; Facilitation, Teambuilding & Training; OD & Change Management; Program Design — grounded in neuroscience, governance, and 20 years of global leadership experience.

5. Who we work with:
 All looks good, but the following text is in a mis-matched font:
 There is no "one size fits all." Every engagement is tailored to meet your specific needs, challenges and goals.

6. Under Services we can change the title of #4 to "Program Design".
 DThen the description of #4 can read:
 "Design and deliver catalytic programming using locally-led, adaptive, human-centered approaches, and drawing on inclusive engagement to define challenges and solutions in the narrative of those living them."

7. Let's remove 05 completely.

8, The "Why choose 3Ts" section is clear, but I really want it to be more impactful and more imaginative than just a list. What sort of mosaic, hover-over, or bubble-like function can you employ here?

9. Under Selected impact. Let's make the title "Better Decisions. Better outcomes"
 16% - Improvement in leadership scores across 18 training cohorts of World Bank leaders
 60% - Reduction in gun violence since 2022 in a major US city, following community-centered intervention
 $247m - Government funding managed for target communities, and reconciled for audit-ready closeout.
 20+ - leave as it

Selected Engagements

10. Let's remove the line about confidentiality.

11. Adjust the following.

01 - Headline is ok. Make text read: Currently supporting the World Bank team in the assessment of Saudi Arabia's Vision 2030 progress and next steps.

02 - Leave as it is

03 - Executive and Leadership Coach to INGOs.- currently providing executive coaching support to multiple MENA and Africa senior leaders in a leading global humanitarian confederation working to combat systemic poverty and inequality.

11b - remove the link for "More Engagements"

About 3Ts

12. Title is good but let's make the text:

20 years of senior international experience across the Gulf, Levant, Africa, and Asia, including leadership of multi-country governance and reform portfolios valued at up to $161 million.

Global class coach, facilitator and trainer (World Bank roster member). Georgetown-trained in Leadership Coaching and in Organizational Development & Change Leadership. Advanced degrees in Governance & Behavioral Neuroscience. British and Jordanian; working across the region in English, French, and Arabic.

13. Under "let's chat" on the page footer for all pages, remove "Sarasota, FL" - also on the Contact page/Office locations.

About Page

14. Replace the Intro, Professional Profiles and Facilitation Practice with:

Building Together

Hello, I'm Shareef.

I help individuals, teams, and organizations do the work on the inside to make the impact they want on the outside. I believe a better world is built decision by decision, room by room — when the right people are aligned around difficult truths and leave with the will to act on them. That belief is what connects everything I do, whether I'm holding a politically sensitive room in the Gulf, coaching a senior leader through a career inflection point, or designing a program for a community that has been failed by previous attempts at change.

My methods are grounded in an academic background spanning Neuroscience and Governance, and shaped by 20 years of leading teams in some of the world's most complex and consequential environments. I bring rigor, warmth, and a genuine commitment to fairness — not as a stated value but as a design principle embedded in how I work.

Professional Profile

- Leader, Facilitator, Trainer & Coach

I engage, convene, and support diverse individuals, teams, and stakeholders to meet their challenges: creating the conditions for candid exchange, genuine alignment, and decisions that hold.

- Strategist, Implementer & Change-maker

I develop data-driven approaches to organizational and social change, drawing on systems and complexity thinking, human-centered design, and a both/and mindset that resists false choices.

- Program Leader & Cultural Interlocutor

I have lived and worked across 9 countries, establishing and leading multi-million-dollar programs in fragile and conflict-affected environments, and have worked across science, health, education, government, and the public and private sectors.

15. Reorder the Education and credentials list:

- Certificate in Leadership Coaching — Georgetown University
- Certificate in Organizational Development & Change Leadership — Georgetown University
- Project Management Professional (PMP) — PMI
- PgDip in Local Government Management — University of Warwick
- M.Sc. International Development: Governance & Development — University of Birmingham
- M.S. Neuroscience — Emory University

16. Let's remove the "if you don't see..."

17. Let's change the quote to: I hope that together, our work contributes to a world where collaboration yields outcomes worthy of the people who need them most.

Approach Page

18. Change "Our Approach" to "My Approach"

19. Paragraph under the title should read:

"My methods are grounded.."

Why Choose 3Ts:

20. As on the landing page, this feels too important to be just a list. Bring it to life any way you can, please. I welcome your creative suggestion.

Under My Methodology,

21. you can change this whole section to:

I draw on systems & complexity thinking, human-centered design, and a "both/and" mindset to develop data-driven approaches to individual, organizational and social change. I provide a unique combination of respect, authority and humility: encouraging candid and provocative exchange while maintaining cohesion and dignity and focus on goals.

Facilitation: The room is only as good as what it produces

Most gatherings generate energy without producing decisions. I design and hold the rooms where that changes: politically sensitive multi-stakeholder processes, leadership off-sites, cross-functional strategy sessions, and decision convenings where alignment is earned and owned, rather than assumed. My methods do not manage the conversation, but listen for what is underneath it: the underlying narrative, the unspoken resistance, the connection no one has yet vocalized. I play that back with precision, so senior teams can make informed choices and leave with decisions that hold under the stress of real implementation.

Coaching: Clarity about yourself is the precondition for everything

I work with senior leaders who are navigating complexity, carrying transformation mandates, or standing at a genuine inflection point in their careers. My approach is disciplined, warm, and direct: I hold the structure of our work firmly while creating the space and safety for real exploration. I listen for the person beneath the presenting problem and reflect it with precision: who you are in this situation, what grounds you, what gets in your way, and what a considered next step looks like from where you actually stand, not where the system expects you to be.

Program Design & Management: A plan that cannot survive contact with reality is not a plan.

I design programs to produce real change in real conditions: for communities, institutions, and the people carrying the work inside them. Every design begins with honest diagnosis: what the data shows, what those closest to the issue actually experience, and where those two accounts diverge. That gap is my brief. I then build architecture around a shared, clearly articulated goal while keeping the path to it deliberately flexible — with governance, accountability, equity checkpoints, and guardrail agreements designed in from the start, not retrofitted when things go wrong. Those most affected by a problem are its most credible designers. Those carrying the work understand its friction best. Both principles shape everything I build.

Organizational Development & Change Management: Announced change is not adopted change.

Organizational change fails most often not because the strategy was wrong but because the conditions for adoption were never built. I work with leaders and teams to close that gap: diagnosing where the real friction sits, designing interventions that address it, and building the governance, communication, and capability structures that make new ways of working stick. Whether the change is a structural redesign, a cultural shift, a new operating model, or the alignment of a leadership team that is no longer honest with itself, my work is to help organizations move from intention to embedded practice.

22. Let's add a section here to find a home for info to replace "Anti-colonial thought and practice". Somehow, in it's own box, section or other way to highlight that it's a guiding ethos, you can add:

"A Commitment to Fairness and Equity Inclusion is a global condition, not a Western export.

The progress that DEI efforts have produced is real and worth defending. So is the recognition that models developed in US and European contexts don't travel well. Imposing them uncritically in international, intercultural, or non-Western settings can undermine the very fairness they intend to advance. I approach every engagement with the understanding that equity looks different depending on where power sits, whose voice has historically been excluded, and what local realities actually demand. This is not a separate service, it is the lens through which I design facilitation processes, coaching relationships, programs, and organizational change. Fairness is not a module: it is a precondition."

22b. Then add in your content from the "parpectives" page starting at:

"I work with teams and organizations..." through the end of the page.

23, Stakeholder Breadth

Remove the languages - it looks odd here.

Services Page

Top part is good.

24. Under the heading make it:

"Explore a range of coaching, facilitation and consulting services designed to meet your unique organizational needs, build resilience, and drive sustainable improvements in how you make an impact in the world."

25. To align with the landing page: we now have only 4 services:

Coaching

Facilitation, Teambuilding & Training

Program Design

OD & Change Management

26. Remove the current content on "Perspectives". Can you structure this in a way that I can add writings or videos in future.

You can add this video now: https://youtu.be/_-31fvz8-7w?si=faDjit1int1ba0Ga

27. Add a Testimonials tab as another way to easily find them.

27. I think all info on the "Leadership" page is redundant. Tell me what you were going for with this and/or if you think it serves an essential purpose.

28. Something I can't find a home for:

On the landing page, under selected engagements, if possible add a 4th engagement.

DC Public Schools - Leadership Team Support

Facilitated team building retreats and served as technical adviser for public sector leaders navigating the increased risk of gun violence in schools.

Please let me know if anything is unclear or I can explain further.
