Thank you for all your effort, Hashem. I really appreciate your creativity and playfulness - this is something I advocate for with my clients and in my work.

Let's go with the constellation as the main image....incidentally this also looks a bit like a neural network which I LOVE. I like what you are proposing with the stars/node and I'd love to see a mock up. Attached is the AI image I generated which I somewhat like, but I wanted it at less of a vertical, and didn't want to see the full face (or nostrils). Again, the aim was "inspiration moving to action".

I like your mock up of the compass, but you're right, it doesn't fit here and doesn't look good on mobile.

I like the thought of the bento version a lot, but I dislike the dead space, the text is small, and I don't want the format to take away from the content. Working with this, though:

Option 1 - use space between title and text to change/vary box size and shape: squares and rectangles, increase the size of the text font, and try and make the resulting mosaic fit onto a single screen. See the 3x3 or 4x3 examples of the link below - any of these might be cool.

Option 2 - This is a stretch: but would it be possible to have each as moveable boxes in a space that users can play with - just like the Klotski puzzle in this link? - <https://tmuetze.de/puzzle.html>

If neither of those look good or are just not viable, my next favorite is Decision Room, but on mobile it shows up as "Agenda 01 - 06".

How you have presented this on the "Approach" page is perfect.

Further edits: inconsistent capitalization: "Better Decisions. Better Outcomes".

The "commitment to fairness and equality" on the about page looks SHARP. But it's now a monolith. Let's pull out a few lines and make them big/bold/standouts:

I work with teams and organizations to understand the unique challenges of the current global context and help them consider their position and approaches to better support fairness and inclusion.

It's about recognizing that local leadership, indigenous knowledge, and non-Western organizational norms have immense value that is often overlooked.

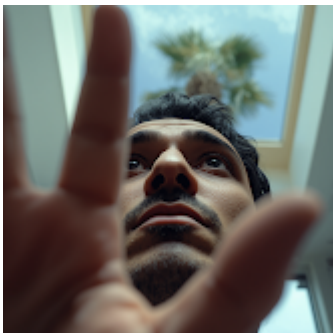

Any other suggestions to make this section a little more visually varied/dynamic/engaging?

Also on the Methodology page - the description of each service is, again, a monolith. Clients will likely only look for information on one specific service, so perhaps we need a layout with a clear title/box for each service and its corresponding description to make it easier to scan and find.

Thanks again for all your effort. Eid mubarak and let's talk later in the week.
